- The School of Education, Teaching, and Health recommends that education students study abroad during their junior year or during the summer.
- If you are interested in studying abroad, please let your Education advisor, Karen DeAngelis, know as soon as possible. She will work with you to locate the best program for your academic interests.
- Education students may find more courses available to them abroad in their concentration/minor/primary major. Please also see the major advising sheets for these subjects when considering your study abroad location.
- Elementary and secondary education students may be able to take some of their education courses at the 300 level and above abroad. Methods courses should not be taken abroad. Please see Karen DeAngelis for more details.
- To have courses approved, students must submit course descriptions and completed course equivalency forms to Karen DeAngelis. A syllabus may be required to have courses approved.

Please see the reverse for a selection of study abroad options!
